Subject: Axon Citizen update

Hello,

Thank you for participating in Axon Citizen's early access trials! Your feedback has been incredibly useful in getting the product to where it is today and in building a roadmap for the future. I wanted to provide some key updates and exciting new features that will be included in our February 27th release:

1. Citizen one-on-one will now be available to every Evidence.com agency in the US, Canada, UK, and Australia
2. iPhone support in Axon Capture
3. Ability to send individual invitations to an email address, great for collecting CCTV
4. Ability to require contact info so officers can't accept anonymous submissions
5. Support for our CAD/RMS integration product so ID and category are auto-tagged on submissions

Point of contact change

I'm headed on paternity leave after next week (Feb 11) so your new point of contact is Lee McMillan (CCed), our Senior Product Marketing Manager. If you have any feedback at all, start with citizen-feedback@axon.com as we've got a great team of folks listening. I'll be back in action April 8.

Again, it's been a pleasure working with everyone and we look forward to continued partnerships down the road!

Best,

Noah

Noah,

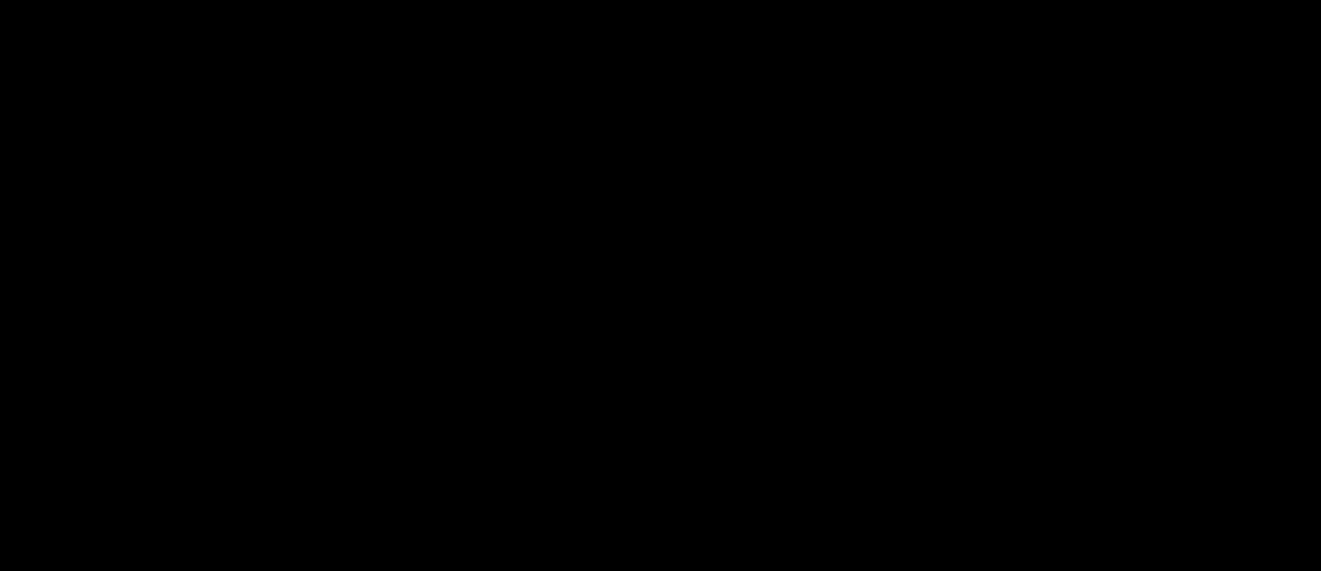

I received the highlighted portion back from our city legal department, would it be possible to add this to the agreement? I think this comes from them being unfamiliar with how the program works more than anything else.

TRUST IS A TWO-WAY STREET. KEEP IT OPEN WITH AXON CITIZEN.

Dear Jeffrey,

Communities and law enforcement agencies rely on each other to prevent and solve crimes. Unfortunately, manual evidence collection and management, inefficient workflows, and security issues can weaken these efforts.

In our December 15 webinar, law enforcement and security experts will discuss the challenges of collecting digital evidence from the community and show how Axon Citizen streamlines the process. You'll learn about:

- Tools that simplify evidence collection, management, and verification
- Ways the public can contribute to an investigation in real time and privately
- Technology that supports law enforcement-witness corroboration
